Angelenos of All Ages Invited to Bring a Digital World to Life Through Their Own Moves in Free Interactive Digital Installation "The Music Center Presents Life In Motion"

Opens Friday, April 24, 2026

WHAT:

L.A.'s performing arts center invites Angelenos and visitors of all ages to step into its digital arts space to create their own digital art related to nature and the building blocks of life.

Developed by Taiwanese artist Chi Po-Hao and Zone Sound Creative, The Music Center Presents Life in Motion depicts a series of unique scenes that explore the beauty, complexity and interconnectedness of life.

Participants, for example, can gather particles in space, shift landscapes of mountains and rivers, draw musical scores and more--all powered by their own movements and hand gestures--depicted on screens inside the Digital Arts Space at The Music Center.

The Music Center Presents Life in Motion is the latest free public art installation presented by The Music Center's Digital Innovation Initiative (DII), designed to explore and create digital and immersive experiences that marry technology and the arts.

The Music Center Presents Life in Motion is made possible in part by grants from:
